Eclipses for 2025

GENERAL ECLIPSE INFO

Eclipses are periods of major changes or events, and the issues they bring up can last at least 3–6 months for a lunar eclipse or up to a year or longer for a solar eclipse. An eclipse event can occur as early as 30 days prior to the actual eclipse or as late as 30 days after the eclipse, and occasionally earlier or later. Whether they affect you or your company significantly depends entirely upon your personal or company chart.

No two eclipses are the same. Each one has different potentials based on the duration, its Saros series pattern, the aspects of the planets, and the Sabian symbol associated with its degree. Some eclipses indicate good events, while others show severe challenges and changes. Solar eclipses are associated with new beginnings, and lunar eclipses are associated with completions or endings.

It's best not to start something new within a week of an eclipse, as the outcome is iffy, even if the Final Result Code is Green.

To determine if a particular eclipse will impact you strongly, check your personal or company chart, or ask your astrologer to do this for you. If you have a planet or sensitive point within 3 degrees (+ or -) of the eclipse degree (especially within one degree), or opposite the eclipse degree, then the eclipse will have a substantial impact. For example, there's a Lunar Eclipse on March 14, 2025 at 23 degrees 57 minutes Virgo. If you have any planets, angles, or sensitive points between 20 - 26 degrees Virgo, or between 20 - 26 degrees Pisces, then the eclipse will be on or opposite those points, signaling a major issue or event for you.

The following are the specific meanings of the eclipses occurring in 2025. These meanings will be further modified by the aspects of that day, plus the location and aspects of the eclipse in your chart. Additional information is provided in the Good Timing Newsletter and email updates.

2025 ECLIPSES

Lunar Eclipse on March 14, 2025 at 23 degrees Virgo 57 minutes
Solar Eclipse on March 29, 2025 at 9 degrees Aries 00 minutes

The above two eclipses have the following basic meaning based on their Saros Cycle. This series of eclipses is associated with very strong physical events. Accidents, violence and activities that require a great deal of physical effort are common. It can also be experienced positively, such as learning to snowboard or ski jump for the first time. If this eclipse impacts your chart (especially within 3 degrees), the best approach is to commence a physical activity (clean the garage?) with a vigilant eye for safety.
